

Design and colour in a dragon

The Museum has a dragon called Blaze. He lives on the top of the Cloth Hall and has a very important job; he is a weathervane. He tells us the direction the wind is blowing, his tail pointing either north, south, east or west. He's quite an old dragon and is thought to be a copy of a dragon weathervane that used to be on Newbury's old Guildhall, which was demolished and replaced in the nineteenth century.

Using colouring pens and felt tip pens, design and colour your own dragon using the outline below. Don't forget to name your dragon and say what type of dragon they are! For example, Blaze the dragon of the wind.
