

Colour in a Saxon amber necklace

This is an Anglo-Saxon object. It is a necklace made from beads of amber; this is fossilised tree resin. The necklace was found in a cemetery at East Shefford, and is described as 'grave goods', which are objects buried with a person.

Using felt tip pens or colouring pencils, colour in the necklace.

