

Colour in the musket balls

These are some musket balls, made from lead, dating from seventeenth century. Soldiers called musketeers used these in their firearm (musket), which was used during the Civil War. The ones still joined together have not been shot and show how they have been cast in a mould. Using felt tip pens or colouring pencils, colour in the musket balls.

