

Colour in the stocks

These stocks were used in Newbury Market Place to punish crimes such as drunkenness. The person who had committed the crime would have their legs put in two of the holes so holding them immobile. People would be allowed to throw rotten food and shout insults at them. Using felt tip pens or colouring pencils, colour in.

