Make a rocking snowman

This rocking snowman is very straightforward to make and requires only basic craft materials you'll probably have to hand at home.

You will need: a white paper plate (dinner plate size); a fine nib black permanent marker; an orange pipe cleaner; scraps of thin card (which can be from a cereal box or similar); a glue stick or glue dots; sticky tape (optional).

Instructions:

- 1. Fold the paper plate in half. Cut to make two semi-circles.
- 2. Make one of the semi-circles into a cone. Secure in place using glue/glue dots and/or sticky tape.
- 3. Flatten the cone slightly, ready to add the snowman's features.
- 4. Use the black permanent marker to draw on eyes, a mouth and buttons.
- 5. With the orange pipe cleaner make a carrot nose by winding the rest of the pipe cleaner around a 3cm section. Make one end big and then gradually make it smaller until you reach the other end you now have a carrot! Attach to the snowman's face using glue or glue dots.
- 6. Use scraps of thin card to make a scarf and a top hat. With the black permanent marker add details to both. Then attach to the snowman with glue or glue dots.
- 7. Slightly ease out the cone at the bottom, enough to allow the snowman to stand unaided and, of course, to rock when gently pushed!
- 8. The snowman is now complete. You can make another with the other half of the paper plate just repeat steps 2-7.

Fun fact: The earliest known photography of a snowman has been recorded in the National Library of Wales, and was taken in 1853.
